How to find documentation for NDE Research Software

In an effort to minimize the size of the Verasonics® Software Release package, large documentation files are now provided to users via the Verasonics Community Web Portal. This website is restricted to Verasonics customers and requires a one-time registration. It can be reached by browsing the following URL:

<https://verasonicscommunity.com/>

Once you enter the site, please click the Vantage™ Resource Documents tab. Here you will find a list of Application Notes, Manuals, and other helpful documentation about the Vantage Research Ultrasound System. To narrow the list of displayed documents, please enter a key term in the search box.

The NDE Research Software documentation includes the following files (search term NDE):

1.1 NDE Research Software Application Note

This is an application note for the NDE Research Software.

This document is intended for NDE Research Software users. It provides the user with instructions for use and examples. This document also describes the features of the software.

Also note that other marketing information and specifications are provided on the public Verasonics website.
